The Club Champions League (CCL) was started in 1997 and is considered by some to be the best regional soccer league in the United States. As the destination for the college bound soccer player, the CCL strives to activate and accelerate youth soccer development through its club-centric, technical director-driven model. The CCL is home to the club-to-club matchday, provides superior competition, offers programming for ages eight to twenty-three, and consists of the top youth soccer clubs in Virginia, Maryland and Washington, D.C.

The CCL offers three divisions through CCL PRO23, CCL and CCL II. Additionally, CCL ScrimmageFests, CCL Generation adidas Club Invitational, CCL II adidas Festivals, CCL College Combine, CCL College Showcases and CCL United are available for players to compete in environments designed to develop players while enhancing the CCL brand.

The CCL is run by a governing board made up of professional soccer directors from each club. In 2014, the league hired Brian Kuk as its Executive Director to oversee the league's day-to-day operations.
